

Macs Blog

Sunday 10th August 2008

Rained - no tool action :o(

Saturday 9th August 2008

Went across to my local car boot sale at Needham Lake. Was walking past a pitch when I spied a small wooden box with "Norris London" stamped on the lid. On opening this I discovered a beautiful set of jewellers screwdrivers, each stamped "Norris London" and the number (1 through 6). I asked the seller how much he wanted for them to which he replied that they were a good make and that he'd sell them (plus a small engineering gauge) to me for £10 (~$20 US). These are really exquisite and probably date from the 1930's given that they are nickel plated (no nickel plating during WWII and Norris ceased to trade in 1946ish). Noticed on a well known electronic auction site that the No. 6 screwdriver sold for £20.